

- Question 1: I'd like to first give you an opportunity to tell us anything about yourself you'd like anyone reading this to know. It could be about your personal life, other Pokemon or online communities you're part of, or any interesting things about you. What, if anything, would you like readers to know about you?

- : i'm handsome. Thats all u have to know

- Question 2: Congratulations on winning UUFPL most recently. I'd like for this interview to focus on newer UU players and how the community can be more inclusive. Can you tell us what your thought process was for drafting UUFPL players? And if you'd have any advice for newer players who want to participate in these draft tournaments?

- : tyty. It was mainly viv who drafted for uufpl. The whole idea of the team was to draft viv and u so we could just have fun and since im a try harder we drafted the best players to fill the slots: 3 letters username, gdriver, 2 letters username (wtf???) and wcop winner (wtf?????????) etc. I drafted panther myself tho! Because I like him and he wins against me on ladder. Idk draft was pretty casual given that uufpl is a fun tour. The tour being inclusive was a cool thing. We saw unknown players like ewin shine.
On the other hand, while we have decent casual players in the most recent gens because the playerbase is bigger, its not the case for old gens. This led to players getting drafted because they were overall decent / good even tho they didn't know anything abt the tier (e.g. ara staxi yami am and others!!) which led to some disappointing games and old gens not being very interesting to follow as a whole. I like the whole rule about uupl tho.
About new players uh idk team tours are elitist fwi

- Question 3: Despite being a relatively new member in the UU community, you're already highly respected as a top player. Why have you contributed, or at the very least participated, in the UU community? In other words, what's kept you going? Do you think it's worth your time looking back?

○ :

I wouldn't say I contributed. I never wrote any analysis, hosted a project or w.e. I barely tutored, shared some teams for sample and wrote few lines on the thread when a mon was broken. However what kept me going and why I started in the first place is boredom and friends who were around;

- Question 4: You've made a lot of friends in the UU community. One member has even renamed himself Ramolost with a capital R. Why do you think your personality is so likeable for many UU players? I think it's fair to say you don't take yourself seriously which people respect. How do you think that has affected your UU experience, instead of being a "tryhard" so to speak?

○ :

y ive heard of it this guy is kinda weird???he dms me some weird stuff sometime. Idk if im so likeable tho and you seem biased, and I have no idea on how to answer this question. Idt it affected my uu experience. While im not a tryhard I still tryharded for some tours (snake uupl) so my approach of the game depends on how I felt and the time I had, not really on my personality No it wasn't worth my time, im wasting my life by playing mons on a website i wish I never touched this game im only 18 at 18 you are supposed to go out and get your first kiss all I do is stayng in my room insulting mygrein when he plays

- Question 5: Looking forward, there's hardly any shortage of opportunities for established players like yourself to participate in the UU community. If you wanted to, you'd be drafted for UU World Cup for sure. The opportunities for visibility for newer and lesser skilled players though aren't as numerous - hard as it is to swallow, managers simply don't regularly look at public and accessible activities like "victim of the week threads" or even the gen8uu ladder scores. First, do you think it's an issue that newer players cannot immediately break in or do you think there's value in keeping a largely steady stream of old faces?

- : I think it's a good thing that new players cant immediately break in. having a good and solid playerbase for tours is important. The better the players r the better the games r. having some match up like adaam vs rob However tours like uufpl are great to include those casual players in the competitive scene.

- Question 6: On the topic of looking forward, do you have any goals for yourself in the future you'd like to share? In competitive Pokemon or otherwise? If not, what do you like most about participating in the UU community?

- : i have no goals at all. Id like to have a dog when I'll be older if I get older tho. I'll give him a fancy name.

- Question 7: As one of UU's older members at this point, I've witnessed many changes over the years. One important change is the constant come and go of players and contributors. Players who once formed the core of the competitive and contributing scene in UU like kokoloko, Euphonos, Hogg are no longer present while newer members such as yourself become participants of the day. Do you think it's important for the contributors and players of today to sustain a lasting community, even after they likely leave? Or do you think it's better to treat Pokemon simply for fun and get the most out of it when you're a current player?

- : who cares pokemon is a fun game. I think ppl contributing to make this game better is a cool thing tho. But ive seen people according too much credit to this game and give too much energy. Its not worth it.

- Question 8: Thanks again for taking the time to do this interview. Are there any closing thoughts you'd like to leave with readers?

- : moooooooooooooooooooooooooooo

BONUS Interview:

Hide

- Who's the most overrated UU player? Most overrated UU community member?

- : this question is kinda mean tbh. ksteve

- Why are navii and moutemoute bad players?

- : navi is a mu fisher and i hate mu fisher. he also thinks hes top shit but w/e. another mean question tho. while i said in my young age that moute was terrible, i think hes pretty decent actually

- Can you explain what led to the "ramoment":

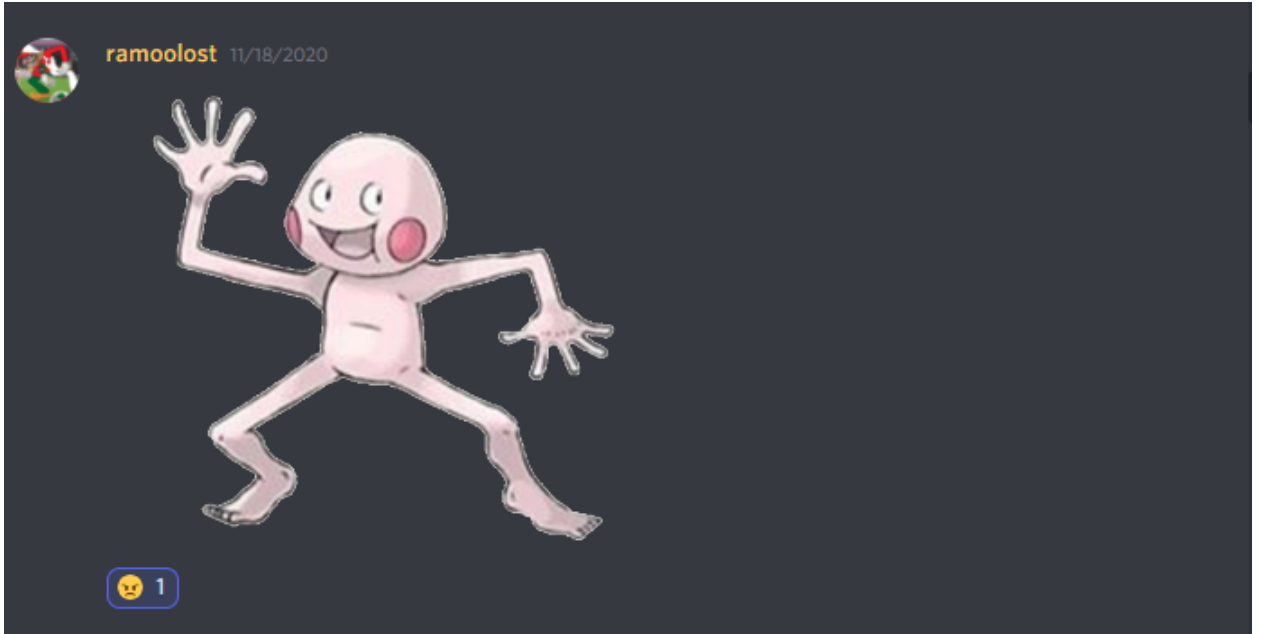

-  : i had a 3 hours night

- Who's your favorite shitposter?

-  : adaam is the only answer

- Why do you shitpost/cringe post?:

(I had worse pictures that were rightfully censored)

○

: i dont know i always spammed cursed shit randomly.

- Why is this so iconic ramolost:

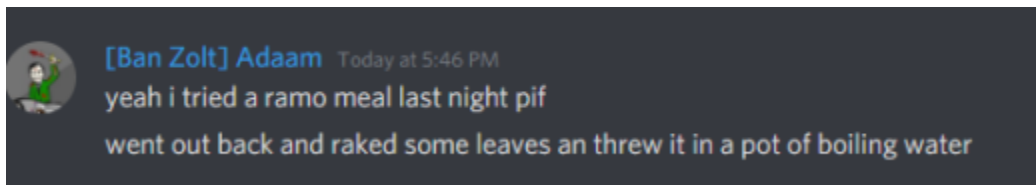

- : idk but i love smirk cat. however when i talk to girls i use it a lot and thats why im still a virgin

- If you could uncancel a cancelled UU player, why would yeezyknows still be banned from Smogon?

- : Id uncancel viv (cancelled for being a simp)

- Would you rather eat your own meals for your life or be ghosted by hs using Lilburr teams for all your tournaments:

- : im terrible at cooking and while hs is bad hes cool. my pastas are great tho. and the only meal i posted was actually good even tho it looked like garbage so shut up adaam